NEW YORK AD'S.

NOTICE.

Model Sewing Machine.

[From the New York Herald.]

Prominent among the mechanical triumphs of this most ingenious age, common honesty compels us to notice the Empire Sewing Machine, commended as justly styled perfection itself. Useful as have been the various sewing machines, from time to time presented to the public, each one of them has been cursed with some radical defect, which detracts from general utility. Warned by the experience of his predecessors, the inventor of the Empire Machine has produced an instrument, combining all the advantages for which others are vaunted, and obviating every defect which can be attributed to them by the most fastidious critic.

The Empire Machine is a marvellous combination of simplicity, economy and perfect workmanship, being durable, free from liability to get out of order, noiseless, and easy of operation. Its mechanical contrivance is such as to secure stability, freedom from accident, and accuracy as to workmanship. By the use of the patented shuttle and straight needle, it makes a stitch, which can neither rip nor ravel, at the same time, it can operate perfectly upon every species of material from leather to cambric, with threads of cotton, linen or silk, from the finest to the coarsest number.

As the Empire Machine is gradually supplanting its more antique rivals, no one in want of a useful instrument of this description, be he or she tailor, coach maker, dress maker or seamstress, can do otherwise than secure one of these economical and inimitable machines, suited alike for family and manufacturing purposes. The office of the Empire Manufacturing Co. is at No. 536 Broadway, New York city, where they are now supplying these Empire Machines at prices far below the real value of the instrument.

By reason of a severe indisposition, we have been confined to our room for the last three or four days, and we are not now sufficiently convalescent to resume our editorial duties; but lest our worthy city contemporary, who perhaps does not know our condition, and who felt himself called upon to notice our "postal" article, imagine he has gained a great triumph, or that his inexorable logic leaves us no room to reply, we venture to undertake the task, though with great injustice to ourselves.

We are both pleased and pained that our neighbor felt that our article demanded remarks at his hand. We are pleased, because we shall hereafter know where to find him. We are pained to see a man of his sense casting his lot with such men as those for whom he speaks in his "notice." The fact is, the editor of the North State feels the cogency of our remarks; or rather the lovely trio, who, if they do not indite for us, are much inclined to believe, contribute much by invendo to the ostensible editor which if he does not seek he highly prizes. Much of the learned "notice" so far as the mere statements are concerned, are based upon the reckless assertions of others. We wot of a caucus in which we doubt not much of this learned "notice" was planned. We say that our neighbor and his friends for whom he speaks feel the force of our remarks. Though they were asserted at random, they did not fail to hit the proper mark. The squirming and writhing of our neighbor in his prolix "notice," show how keenly the truth of our assertions is felt. But perhaps there are some persons who have not enjoyed the high estimation in which they are held by nineteen-twentieths of their countrymen for their unblushing perfidy during the late war. Hence, in order to gratify these men, if there are any more so unfortunate that they can neither see nor learn, we will reproduce our article, headed "Postal Matters." It is a true sketch, read it carefully. We could make it much stronger, but it will do.—Here it is:

POSTAL MATTERS.

The want of Post Offices and men who can take the test oath is deeply felt throughout the whole Southern country. We want quite a number of post masters in this country. Rowan Mills, a very important point on the Western Road, and through which nearly all the upper part of the county has heretofore been supplied with mails, has no office, and the people no mails; because there is not to be found in all the surrounding country an individual that can take the expurgatory oath. We are sorry to see our people deprived of mail facilities, but there is one circumstance, which will doubtless go far to console them while they are suffering these wrongs and deprivations, that is, the pleasure of knowing that our people were honest and true to their section during the late bloody struggle, against radicalism and unconstitutional encroachments; and that there is but few if any men or women among them that can take an oath that must brand them with infamy to the latest generation.

As we have said we have but few individuals among us who can take this oath. It is certainly no credit to any one that he can do so. But it is a burning shame and lasting stigma upon the character of any one who can take an oath that he was a traitor to his own section; that he, while his friends, his kindred, his countrymen, were engaged in a life or death struggle, for constitutional liberty, free government, and, in short, all that was dear to the human heart,—we say that he did not so much as "countenance" or "encourage" them in their noble and patriotic efforts is sufficient to consign him to infamy.

But we want post masters and mail contractors. We have none, under the present regime, who are eligible to these important positions, and we ask Northern men to come among us and fill these places for us. Will not the Government send us men to take charge of our postal affairs? None need fear mistreatment or proscription by our people. They will be encouraged and respected by them. In their behalf we invite them to come.—Union Banner.

Now we suppose our neighbor's friends would claim that we should publish his "notice" in their defense. They shall have it. But we will say to them in great compassion, that if their hope of Heaven depends upon any tenure half so impotent as this "notice" of our neighbor, it restores them to respectability, they will never reach that glorious place.

The North State after taking a long breath, thus sets out:

"The above from our city contemporary, perhaps demands some notice at our hands.

Our contemporary seems to think that any man or woman who takes the "test oath" will be "branded with infamy to the latest generation."

We refer the reader to our article above in order that he may see what we did say. We retract nothing, and what we did say are the sentiments of all the honest and respectable portion of our population.

The North State continues:

"Now, we will not bandy epithets with our neighbor, but we must confess that we find it difficult to distinguish between a man whose conduct must 'brand him with infamy to the latest generation,' and one who supported him for office solely because his conduct had been such that it 'was sufficient to consign him to infamy.'"

In the late contest for Congress in this district, the Banner warmly supported Dr. Sloan, upon the express ground that he could take the "expurgatory oath," and supported him as a "loyal soldier of the Confederate army," his objection to both those latter gentlemen being that they could not take the test oath. If Dr. Sloan is, and was at the time the Banner supported him for Congress, an infamous man, then we humbly submit that the Banner became a particeps criminis, by its endorsement and support of him.

These statements are not true. To our knowledge, we never wrote a line in support of "Dr. Sloan, upon the express ground that he could take the expurgatory oath." Dr. Sloan was favorably known as a high-toned, consistent, conservative gentleman. This was all we desired to know, and all that was necessary to secure our support for him against Dr. Ramsey. We did not know that Gen. Walker was a candidate until about a week before the election. It was then too late to support him, as we thought, but had we known that he was a candidate in time, he would have gotten our support in preference to any other man in the district.

But grant that we did support Dr. Sloan merely because he could take the oath, which is false, is not our neighbor in the same category as between himself and Mr. Holden? He has been Mr. Holden's man Friday. Mr. Holden and the Standard gave him prominence, character—made him what he is. When one took snuff the other sneezed the major part of the time during the war, and at the close Mr. Hanes took the position of private secretary under the Governor. But now the one cannot find language abusive enough of the other. Well, if Mr. Holden is the most consummate scoundrel and infamous man that Mr. Hanes judges him to be, he was either a long time finding it out or he became a "particeps criminis," by his affiliation with him.

We do not know that Dr. Sloan can take the oath. We do not believe he can. We do not know what his character was during the war. Mr. Hanes did know that of Mr. Holden, but we believe that Mr. Hanes never acted with him until he began to betray the people of his own section. It was then, Mr. Holden took him up and him, who was scarcely known outside his precinct, he made the great Ajax of the State. Yea! co magis profugit, quod non videtur. Mr. Hanes remained closely at home.—Why? because, he knew to be seen and heard, would deprive him of the character the master stroke of his able friend had made the people believe he possessed. But let's hear our neighbor through:

"The Banner claims to be a great admirer and a warm supporter of President Johnson. In its issue of the 31 of April last, it speaks of him, in connection with the statesmen of our Revolutionary era—the Fathers of the Republic—and pronounces him 'the noblest Roman of them all.' President Johnson is a Southern man, a native son of North Carolina, and an adopted son of Tennessee, and yet he is not only able to take the expurgatory oath because of his negative position towards the Confederacy 'during the late bloody struggle,' but because he exerted all his energies against it, and struggled with all the might of his strong will to restore the national authority over Southern States. If, then, humble men and women among us, who, through a heroic devotion to principle which many are unable to understand, can take the test oath, are to be 'consigned to infamy,' to what an immortality of infamy must Andrew Johnson be 'consigned.' We will not stop to characterize such supporters of President Johnson."

This paragraph shows how hard our contemporary is put to, to get something that will make his "notice" appear even plausible.

We admire President Johnson. We admire the course he has pursued. He did not believe in the right of secession. He did not hesitate, but he went to, and acted with the side that opposed it.—This was the proper course for all who believed as he did. He scorned to be a quasi Confederate, or a quasi Union man. He deserves praise for his manly decision, and we feel proud to be able to award it to him. But hear our neighbor: He is now speaking of Mr. Johnson and these who acted as he did, but whom he sums up with those who remained as firebrands among us:

"But the Banner regards these men and women as 'traitors to their own section.' Many honest and conscientious men, taking the same view of the matter in one sense that the Banner does, regarded their allegiance as due to their Country, instead of their 'section,' and manfully and heroically stood by their principles, throughout the entire civil war. We admire and respect all honest secessionists, who stood by their principles, and who did not shrink from the consequences of them. All that is necessary for us to know, to admire and respect any man, is to know that he is an honest man, and is governed by principle, it matters not whether he agrees with us or not; but, unfortunately, we have many men among us who are so narrow-minded and bigoted that they cannot believe that any man is honest who does not see and think as they do."

This is all clap trap. It won't do, neighbor. There was no charge made against those who went over to the other side.

We thought after the drubbing we had given our neighbor on his strange doctrine of States rights and national government, he had given it up as an exploded theory, but it will be seen by his references to "section" and "section" that he has not. We are not surprised at this, however; for when he can establish the fact that ours is a national government, and that there is no such thing as State rights, and State sovereignty, then he and his friends may justify their mendacious course, and those who do not think as they do, at once become traitors indeed and in fact.

But with the present lights before us, we are really surprised to hear a man of the reputed intelligence of our neighbor, say that we had men among us, of even common sense, who regarded their allegiance as due to their country, instead of their section or state. We did not know that there was a man in America, who knows anything of the nature of our form of government, that would deny that his allegiance is first due to his State.

Now we give the last of the North State's "notice."

"Among the moderate and magnanimous men in North Carolina to-day are those who were consistent Union men—who were governed by high principle. With them, the contest was one of principle solely. There was no personal feeling involved in the matter, and all of them, now that a struggle is over, who are men of intelligence for a universal amnesty and are using the influence to reconcile our people in every possible way upon the basis of present loyalty and mutual forgiveness; while such articles as this from the Banner are calculated to foment and continue personal animosities, such as prevent the close of the war, and prevent good and loyal citizens willing to see a national government."

We don't know any of these "most liberal and magnanimous men," and we think it's very probable, if they have sufficient talent to effect anything, it is for the purpose of redeeming their lost characters in estimation of the people. But it is too late.

So far as our article being calculated to produce a ill effect, discord, and strife, is simply absurd. It's mere imagination which eats from the prolific brain of our high wrought neighbor. In our postal article we were merely congratulating our readers upon the fact that our people's a whole were honest, loyal and true to their section, during the terrible, unfortunate, bloody struggle through which we have just passed. But it seems the our remarks found their way to a few that were not. Hence, the North State must stir up a stink. We hope he enjoys it.

Stampede of prisoners from Dobson Jail—Horse Stolen—Pursuit and Capture of one of the Thieves and the third shot down—Deliberate Murder and escape of the perpetrator.

We learn from the mail-carrier from Mt. Airy, that while the jailer at Dobson, Surry county, was engaged in renovating the jail, on Friday, the 11th inst., three prisoners, named Keys, Baldwin and McKensie, succeeded in making their escape. On the same night, three of Mr. Hugh Gwyn's horses were stolen by the fugitives. As soon as the theft was discovered, a party started in pursuit and overhauled the rogues at Poplar Camp Mountain, where two, Baldwin and McKensie, were secured; McKensie refused to surrender and in endeavoring to escape was shot down, the shot taking effect in the head, arm and leg, prostrating him, so that he was left for dead.

During the night however, McKensie made his way within 4 miles of Hillsville, Carroll county, Va., to a toll house kept by Mr. Baker, where he surrendered himself, and asked for breakfast.

After breakfast, for conveying the prisoner to jail, McKensie seized Baker's gun, which was near by, and deliberately shot him in the left breast, severely if not mortally wounding him, and succeeded in making his escape.

The whole neighborhood was aroused and determined to hunt the villain down. It is reported that Mr. Baker has since died.—Salem Press.

Proceedings of Congress.

Washington, May 18.

SENATE.—Mr. Sumner presented the petition of colored citizens asking that the second clause of the pending constitutional amendment be stricken out, and one substituted for it declaring that no Congressman from the South be allowed to sit in the House of Representatives who is not chosen by at least half of the loyal men of his district, without regard to color. Ordered to be printed. He also presented a petition for the trial of Jefferson Davis by a court martial, and remained, in connection, "In presenting this petition I express no opinion on it, but now that the subject is before us, I will add that the trial of Jefferson Davis at the present time by a jury at Richmond, will be one of those great comedies which hereafter will excite the derision of the world." The petition was referred to the Military Committee. The Senate receded from its amendment to the bill authorizing two annual terms of the Circuit Court in the District of Virginia, to commence on 1st Monday in May and November, etc. This action of the Senate restores the authority of the Chief Justice to hold special terms of the Court. The bill having thus passed both Houses awaits the President's signature.

HOUSE.—The House considered a bill equalizing the bounties of soldiers, sailors and marines, giving them at the rate of $100 per year from April '61 to April '65.

The remainder of the session was occupied in the further consideration of the tax bill.

A. RAMSEY, MINISTER, A. A. G.
Judge Bond will perform the duties of the office in the meantime.

THE SPEAKERS IN CONGRESS.

The Washington correspondent of the Boston Post says:

After listening to the debates on the Civil Rights bill I confess I was disappointed, and the more I saw and heard of the men who control the legislation of Congress, the more I became disgusted. Trumbull, of Illinois, the champion of the radicals against the veto, made what, in any other place, would be termed a harangue. His voice is badly cracked and pitched in a high key, which finally became painfully hoarse, and showed signs of breaking down. He is earnest but not graceful. Ben. Wade and Jim. Lane ranted, screamed and bellowed like two mad bulls, and raved like two hyenas. Doolittle appeared somewhat like Webster, and commenced very gracefully, interesting and commanding all eyes and ears, but unfortunately he drops down to common place style, and becomes wearisome. Reverdy Johnson commences in about the same style Doolittle ends, but Reverdy Johnson warms up as he proceeds and gradually works himself and his audience to a high pitch of excitement, and his style becomes highly ornate, his language impudic, easy, flowing, charms and fascinates you until, like the lamented Douglas, you are enchanted by the "little giant." Cowan, of Pennsylvania, the real giant of the Senate, has a voice like a church organ, and although awkward he rivets your attention and uses very strong and original illustrations to make his "points," and hits the nail on the head, as the saying is. He could be heard and seen by hundreds of thousands on Boston Common and would be listened to attentively. His style is peculiar, being a compound of logic and classical rhetoric, with a rather dogmatic manner.

Suerman, of Ohio, speaks well. Guthrie and Davis are both able and earnest debaters. Stewart, of Nevada, bids fair for a leader. Harris and Morgan, of New York, create no sensation in debate. Wilson and Sumner, you know all about. The latter has certainly a very egotistical, topknot, conceited way of attracting the attention of the galleries, as if he was a play-actor on the theatrical stage, but his "tricks" are too apparent. As to the House of Representatives, Thad. Stevens is about the only conspicuous man, the rest of his party being more rank and file. Jack Rogers, of New Jersey, however, makes as much noise as anybody, and is always ready to pitch in and have a free fight with Stevens or any other radical. He and Stevens are the very opposite of each other in everything.

Stevens is an old, lame, demure man, with a great brown wig and irascible temper. Jack Rogers is a gay, handsome, jolly, jet black haired youth, of perhaps twenty-five or thirty, rather fast in his habits and ultra in his politics, it is said. The expulsion of Stockton, of New Jersey, from the Senate, and Brooks of New York, from the House, show that party spirit amounts to injustice sometimes, although a large number of Republicans show by their votes that they had not lost all reason.

The hotels in Washington are abominable, dirty and filthy. If one-half the money yearly expended in the lobby of the capitol was expended in building a good hotel there, it would do some good.

ITEMS OF NEWS.

The farmers in Upper Georgia and North Alabama are plowing up their cotton crops and planting corn instead. Not more than one-fourth of the crop can be counted on in those regions.

It is thought Texas will produce the largest cotton crop the coming season of any of the cotton growing States, and South Carolina the smallest.

The eight hour movement is spoken of as nearly abandoned, after large losses to the strikers and those who advised it.

The city warehouse at Mobile was struck by lightning on Wednesday, and five hundred bales of cotton were consumed.

SEEING THROUGH THE WATER.

The last number of the Edinburgh Review says:

"Currents in the bed of a river, or beneath the surface of the sea, may be watched, as Mr. Campbell informs us, by an arrangement that smugglers used in the old days. They sank their contraband cargo, when there was an alarm, and they searched for it again by the help of a so-called marine telescope. It was nothing more than a cask with a plate of strong glass at the bottom. The man plunged the closed end a few inches below the surface, and put his head into the other end, and then he saw clearly into the water. The glare and confused reflections and refractions from and through the rippled surface of the sea were entirely shut out by this contrivance. Seal-hunters still use it. With this simple apparatus the stirring life of the sea bottom can be watched at leisure and with great distinctness. So far as this contrivance enables men to see the land under the waves, movements under air. Sea weeds like plants, bend before the gale; fish, like birds, deep their heads to the stream, and hang poised on their fins; mud clouds take the shape of water clouds in the air; impede light, cast shadows, and take shapes which point out the directions in which currents flow. It is strange at first, to hang over a boat's side peering into a new world, and the interest grows.—There is excitement in watching big fish swoop like hawks out of their serried forest after a white fly sunk to the tree tops to tempt them, and the fight which follows is better fun when plainly seen. (Vol. i. p. 67.) Mr. Campbell suggests plate glass windows in the bottom of a boat; it would bring men and fish face to face; and the habits of the latter could be leisurely watched."

WOMAN'S TRUE BEAUTY.

"I was glad to have it in my power to do anything my husband wanted me to do," was the beautiful reply of a wife long married, of wealth and position, when I asked her why, by overlooking herself, she had induced great bodily suffering.

A man was terribly injured; a muslin bandage was essential to his safety; it was not at hand, and there was no time to run for it. A young woman present disappeared and returned the next instant with the requisite article taken from her under garment, and the poor man's life was saved.

"My dear wife, I am hopelessly bankrupt," said a merchant, when he entered his fine mansion, at the close of a day, all fruitless in his endeavor to save himself when men were crashing around him in every direction. "Tell me the particulars, dearest," said his wife calmly. On hearing them and his wants to save himself, "Is that all?" and absenting herself a moment, she returned with a book, from between the leaves of which she took bank note after bank note, until enough was counted to fully meet all her husband's requirements. "This," she said, in reply to his mingled look of admiration and astonishment, "is what I have saved for such a possible day as this, from your princely allowance for dressing myself since we were married."

If every mother made it her ambition to mould her daughter's heart in forms like these, who shall deny that many a suicide would be prevented; that many a noble hearted man would be saved from a life of abandonment or a drunkard's dreadful death, and many families prevented being thrown upon society in destitution and helplessness, to furnish inmates for the jail, the poor house, the asylum, and the hospital.

A WORD TO THE LOVERS OF THE ARREST.—Somebody sends a brick as follows after the lovers of the arrest as a gentle reminder of what may be. They will please take heed or not as shall seem best unto them. We have done our duty when we send the brick along for their benefit and longevity.

It is not generally understood in medical circles that persons who are not addicted to strong drinks are the only ones that can reckon on escaping the cholera. Drunkards are the men attacked; they never recover. In Tiflis, Georgia, (Asia) every drunkard is dead. During the last visitation of cholera in New York, out of two hundred and four cases, only six were temperate people. In Albany, out of five thousand temperate men, only two are known to have been attacked during the last visitation of the cholera.

It is reported that Johnson Republican meeting will soon be held in Boston.

DAVIS

VEGETABLE PAIN-KILLER.

THE UNIVERSAL REMEDY FOR INTERNAL AND EXTERNAL COMPLAINTS.

At this period there are but few of the human race unacquainted with the merits of the Pain Killer; but while so few are as a moment they know but little of its power in curing pain when taken internally while others use it internally with great success but are equally ignorant of its healing virtues when applied externally. We therefore wish to say to all that it is equally successful whether used internally or externally, and it stands alone, unrivalled by all the great catalogue of Family Medicines, and its use is universal and unimpaired. The demand for it from India and other foreign countries is equal to the demand at home, and it has become known in those far off places by its merits—the proprietors have never advertised it or been at any expense in its introduction into foreign lands.

THE SENTINEL is an independent newspaper—a warm supporter of the Union and the Constitution, of Andrew Johnson, our magnanimous President and his policy, and devoted especially to the reorganization and prosperity of the South and North Carolina.
It labors to promote harmony, good feeling and equal rights among all the States, but will rebuke all unfounded expressions against the loyalty and integrity of the Southern people.
Special attention will be paid to the news and market departments.
Full proceedings of the Legislature and all important State papers appear in the Sentinel.
Its circulation is believed to be equal to any in the State, if not the largest. Its advertising patronage is large and growing.

NEW SKIRTS FOR 1866.
The Great Invention of the Age in
HOOP SKIRTS.
J. W. BRADLEY'S New Patent DUPLEX ELIPTIC
(or double) SPRING SKIRT.
THIS INVENTION consists of DUPLEX (or two)
ELIPTIC PURE REFINED STEEL SPRINGS, ingeniously braided tightly and firmly together, edge to edge, making the toughest, most flexible, elastic and durable Spring ever used. They seldom bend or break, like the single spring, and consequently preserve their perfect and beautiful shape twice as long as any single spring skirt that ever has or can be made.
The wonderful flexibility and great comfort experienced particularly in all crowded assemblies, operas, carriages, railroad cars, churches, pews, arm chairs, for promenade and house dress, as the skirt can be folded when in use to occupy a small space as easily and conveniently as a silk or Muslin dress.
A lady having enjoyed the pleasure, comfort and great convenience of wearing the Duplex Eliptic Steel Spring Skirt for a single day will never afterwards willingly dispense with their use. For children, misses and young ladies they are superior to all others.
The hoops are covered with 2 ply double twisted thread and will wear twice as long as the single yarn covering which is used on all single hoop skirts. The three bottom rods on every skirt are also double steel, and twice double covered to prevent the covering from wearing off the rods when dragging down stairs, stone steps, etc., etc., which they are constantly subject to when in use.
All are made of the new and elegant corded tapes, and are the best quality in every part, giving to the wearer the most graceful and perfect shape possible, and are unquestionably the lightest, most desirable, comfortable and economical skirt
ever made.
